Frederick Bates (37) was acting Governor of Upper Louisiana May-October, 1807, and September 19, 1809-November 10, 1812, and Governor of Missouri Territory November, 1812-July, 1813.

Samuel Adams (80), Governor of Arkansas, was born in Halifax county, Va., June 5, 1805, and son of Silvester Adams who removed to Humphrey county, Tenn., whence Samuel Adams removed to Arkansas. He became prominent in that State, was a number of years in the Legislature, President of the State Senate for several terms and State Treasurer. (Information furnished by Hon. P. E. Chappell, Kansas City, Mo., a kinsman of Governor Adams.)

Thomas Brown (78), Governor of Florida, was born in Westmoreland county, Va., October 25, 1785.

(Information furnished by his great-nephew General Wm. P. Craighill, U. S. A.)

W. C. Claiborne was Governor of Mississippi Territory 1802-1805, and of Louisiana Territory and State 1804-1811, and 1812-1816.

Thomas Posey was Governor of Indiana, not Indian Territory.

Frederick Bates came to St. Louis at the time of the transfer from France to the United States. He was Secretary and acting Governor of Upper Louisiana, afterwards Missouri Territory, from May, 1807, to October, 1807; also from September 19, 1809, to 1810, and of Missouri Territory from November, 1812, to July, 1813. Frederick Bates was Governor of the State of Missouri 1824 to 1826, but died before his term expired. Bates county, Missouri, was named after him. Benjamin Howard was Governor of Missouri (Upper Louisiana) from September 19, 1810, to November 12, 1812. Howard county, Missouri, was named after him.

Samuel Hammond was never Governor of Missouri, but Gen. Harrison was acting Governor of Missouri until March, 1805, and during that time Samuel Hammond acted as Deputy Governor under Harrison. Samuel Hammond was born in Richmond county, Va., September 21, 1757, and died at Hamburgh, South Carolina, September, 1842, aged 85 years. He was in the battle of Point Pleasant, 1774, at King's Mountain, 1780, and served in the army in the South during the Revolutionary war.

He came to St. Louis at the time of the transfer. The Territory of Missouri was organized in 1812. The next year Hammond was appointed a member of the Legislative Council, and was chosen as its President, but resigned after a year's service. In 1816 he was Director and President of Bank of St. Louis, resigning in 1818. In 1818 he was appointed Receiver of public moneys for Land Office of Missouri and Illinois. In 1825 he left St. Louis and went to Georgia, where he became a member of the Legislature and of Congress.

From Georgia he went to South Carolina and was Surveyor General of the State. He was also Secretary of State of South Carolina. He died at Hamburgh, South Carolina. (Information supplied by Prof. G. C. Brodhead, Columbia, Mo.)

Dr. E. L. Tiffin, Governor of Ohio, practiced medicine for several years in Charles Town, Jefferson county, Va., before he went to the Northwest Territory in 1796. The house he built and lived in, on Liberty street, Charles Town (now West Virginia), is still standing and occupied by Mr. T. W. Tomlinson, who furnishes the above information to The Spirit of Jefferson, Charles Town, July 21. Dr. Tiffin was born in England.

Lewis's History of West Virginia states that Jeremiah Morrow, Governor of Ohio, was born near Shepherdstown, Jefferson county, Va., in 1771, but Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography that he was born in Gettysburg, Pa., October 6, 1771. By act of October, 1790, the Virginia Legislature appointed John Morrow, gent., one of the trustees for managing a lottery to raise money for building a Presbyterian church in Shepherdstown.
